WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

ADAM BARNEY, JD 2009-2010 RECIPIENT

Today, Adam is a partner at the Omaha office of Cline Williams Wright Johnson & Oldfather, L.L.P., practicing commercial litigation. Adam and his wife, Tessa, have three kids, triplets aged 5. When he is not juggling family responsibilities and the practice of law, he enjoys returning to Kearney to visit family and likes to play the occasional round of golf.

"Private support through the Robert R. Veach Scholarship was essential in allowing me to focus on my growth as a lawyer during law school and to participate in other activities such as Law Review. Without private support, some of the opportunities that were critical to me becoming a better lawyer may not have been options for me. In my opinion, the University of Nebraska College of Law is an under-appreciated gem of the State. Through my own experiences, and through mentoring young lawyers in our firm, I know that the College of Law is providing a very high-level education to the next generation of lawyers in this state. The College of Law is doing this with state-of-the-art facilities without burdening its students with debt in large part to the generous support of private donors. Thank you for supporting the College of Law."

LAURA TROSHYNSKI, JD 2007-2008 RECIPIENT

Today, Laura is the Senior Director of Business Owner Advisory services for First National Bank of Omaha. She was previously in private practice for 10 years. Laura is located in her hometown of North Platte, Nebraska.

"Private support guided my decision to attend the University of Nebraska College of Law. It also allowed me to focus on areas of law that I enjoyed. Your generosity is sincerely appreciated and remembered. It has also helped guide my giving choices as I have continued in my professional career. Thank you."
